POLITICAL PARADE

By CLEM WHITAKER

The smashing defeats that the Democratic Party machine suffered in New York and New Jersey last week, and in several other states where Republican candidates bowled over their New Deal rivals in the late fall elections, have served to revive reports that President Roosevelt may call it quits when his present term expires and not seek re-election.

In view of the new surge of Republican power, Mr. Roosevelt faces the threat of losing even his home state of New York, if he seeks a fourth term—and it is highly questionable whether he could win without it.

After three, precedent-shattering terms in the White House—more than any other President has served in the entire history of the Nation—it would be a disastrous anti-climax to be defeated seeking a fourth term. And Mr. Roosevelt, great dramatist that he is, always has shied away from anti-climax.

On the other hand, regardless of what his personal desires may be, Mr. Roosevelt will be literally and actually drafted by the Demcratic National Convention to run again unless he flatly says "No" to the demands of all the party leaders. Four years ago, the "draft Roosevelt" move was a pleasant political subterfuge; Mr. Roosevelt wanted to be nominated and would have been the most surprised man in America if he hadn't been. But in '44 it will be different; the party needs him now, for it faces almost certain defeat without him. There are simply no possible successors to the throne worthy of mentioning—and with defeat likely even with Mr. Roosevelt heading the ticket, it would be virtually inevitable without him.

The Republican Party, despite its sweeping successes in recent elections—and its high hopes of victory next year—likewise is faced with a difficult decision. Wendell Willkie, the GOP standard-bearer in 1940, is actively campaigning to become the '44 nominee—and has made good headway in that direction. If the Republican Convention were held today, Mr. Willkie, according to most astute observers, would probably win the nomination on the first ballot.

On the other hand, there is a definite "Stop Willkie" movement under way among GOP leaders who don't like the blunt-spoken gentleman. But it's a fundamental rule of politics that "You can't beat somebody with nobody"—and thus far the anti-Willkie contingent hasn't been able to find or agree on a candidate of sufficient stature to pit against him.

Those who are spearheading the "Stop Willkie" drive would undoubtedly rally to Governor Dewey of New York, if Mr. Dewey would consent to be their candidate—but Dewey, having promised the people of New York that he would serve out his four-year term as Governor, could only accept the presidential nomination if it were actually forced on him. He can't openly campaign for it—and he probably can't beat Willkie unless he does campaign for it. That's his dilemma. And it's almost as tough as Mr. Roosevelt's!

Sixty Women Respond to Call For Sewers

Responding Tuesday afternoon to an emergency hurry call 60 women assembled at the Red Cross sewing room in the I. O. O. F. hall and in an amazingly short time had rompleted the task of sewing insignia on 200 army uniforms.

A phone call to San Jose failing to secure another supply the ladies went home all set to return Wednesday if more work arrived, but none came.

Mrs. Ray Wood, in charge of the sewing unit, was extremely gratified with the response to the call.

Campbell High Bucs Defeat Santa Clara 12-0

A large turnout from Campbell witnessed the brilliant passing and line plunges of the Campbell high football team when they defeated the Santa Clara Panthers 12-0 in a fast game Friday night on the Santa Clara field.

After ending the first half with no score, the Campbell High Bucs staged a successful passing attack which resulted in the two scores.

The Bucs are now in second place in the valley league and a tie for first place is possible if they defeat Los Gatos in the game Friday at Fremont.

Local War and Community Chest Goes Over the Top

Campbell's quota for the War and Community Chest is over-subscribed, due to the hard work of the solicitors and the sympathetic response of the citizenry.

To date there has been turned in to the treasurer, E. E. Lanphear, in money and pledges, $5464.92, with one solicitor reporting $242.00 to be turned in, and two other sources still to report.

Mrs. G. E. Jeffers, campaign manager, and officers and directors of the chests wish publicly to thank all of the members of the soliciting force who have worked so faithfully and all those whose contributions, small and large have made success possible.

Although the campaig is officially closed contributions can be made at any time and will be very welcome.

Information Given For Blood Donors

Campbell was represented Monday at the blood bank center in San Jose by Mesdames Etta Eddlemon, J. H. Lend, C. B. Reynolds, R. C. Reason and Messrs. R. B. Bishop, Jack Murdock, E. I. Hopkins and Carl B. Field.

Owing to the fact that there are only a very few laboratories in the United States where the blood plasma can be prepared from the blood donations and it must be done within a few hours after the blood is taken, a large part of the population is unable to make contributions so the privilege is restricted to a few areas near the laboratories.

For the information of the public and in response to inquiries the following items relative to who are eligible donors is given by the Red Cross.

Ages—21 through the 59th year. Under no circumstances is the age limit of 60 to be exceeded. Minors (18-21) will be accepted with the signatures of parents or legal guardian. A married girl under 21 has attained her majority. A married boy under 21 is still a minor.

Preparation—Donors must omit all fats such as butter, cream, eggs, meat and soup for four hours before going to Center. It is neither necessary nor advisable to fast. Orange juice, tea, coffee (without cream) and simple crackers should be taken before giving a blood donation.

Must weigh 110 pounds. No preliminary physical examination or blood test is necessary. The following tests calculated to safeguard the donor and determine his suitability are made at the Center:

Temperature must not exceed 99.5 by mouth. Pulse is recorded with note made of irregularity as well as marked bradycardia or tachycardia. No donor acceptable unless the systaltic blood pressure between 100 and 200 mm. of mercury.

The Kiwanis club heard Joseph W. Ostle, district passenger and freight agent for the Southern Pacific for this area discuss "War Transportation" at the Tuesday meeting.

Ostle who has been with the S. P. for twenty years, emphasized the importance of railroads to the war effort here and everywhere.

There are 25 per cent less locomotives now than there were in 1929 with the demand for transportation tremendously increased, with an unprecedented movement of freight and equipment.

Troop trains and civilian travel have multiplied the passenger loads. One way of helping the situation is to unload cars as speedily as possible when they reach their destination.

Dr. W. R. Morgan presided.

J. Hale Larkey of the San Jose club was a visitor.

Next week there will be no Tuesday meeting but Thursday the club will go to Los Gatos to meet with the Los Gatos club Thursday noon.

ARMISTICE DAY

At the 11th hour of the 11th day of the 11th month it came just a quarter of a century ago—peace—that wasn't really peace at all, but merely what the name implied—an armistice.

Now, with the great nations of the earth grinding out another terrible chapter in the history of humanity, Armistice Day may seem to be devoid of meaning. Actually, however, its significance has increased.

Armistice Day is a sharp reminder to us that peace will not automatically drop down from the heavens and abide with us forever, once the shooting ceases. We know now that we must work for, fight for peace as vigorously—if not as dramatically—in peace times as we do in war.

No one factor has given rise to the hope of a genuine and lasting peace as the announced results of the Moscow conference. Whatever that conference may have apparently failed to do in regard to the future status of Baltic and Balkan nations, the fact remains that the Big Four have agreed on several basic principles.

No separate peace with Germany—or Japan. A definite plan for the trial and punishment of war criminals. Cooperation in the maintenance of peace in the post-war world, not only among the Big Four but among all nations that care to join with them.

The success of this conference now opens the way for a face-to-face meeting between Roosevelt, Stalin and Churchill — and possibly Generalissimo Chiang Kai Shek. If these "top men" of the globe can succeed in getting together in spirit as well as in body, the outlook for the world will be brighter than it has been in decades.

We have reason to hope therefore that the "November 11th" of this war will not be merely an armistice day but the beginning of a lasting peace.

"DELINQUENT PARENTS"

Almost every community in the state is painfully aware today that one of the greatest war-born problems is that of alarmingly increased juvenile delinquency. Virtually every town is wrestling with the problem for which "delinquent parents" seem to be more to blame than the youngsters.

In San Francisco, Police Chief Charles W. Dullea, recently announced that mothers and fathers of young offenders will be arrested. And in Sacramento police have hailed into court the parents of a youngster ten years old, on charges of failing to provide a proper home for him. Both were war workers and brought home a combined income of $4,000 annually.

Accompanying this shock treatment for parents, however, should be a broad educational program informing them of facilities available in their own communities for the safe amusement, care and guidance of children. Too few parents, generally speaking, know of or participate in the community work for the benefit of children.

Dads and mothers should make it their business to find out about such organizations, where they are located, how their facilities can be used, and also what they themselves can do to support and enlarge public work in children's behalf.

Our teen-age youngsters today represent the hope of the state and nation tomorrow. The problem of juvenile delinquency must be constructively approached, and attacked on every front, although the major battle must be waged in the home. That is where the main brunt of the struggle must be borne.

HAIL TO THE MARINES!

On November 10, 1775, there came into being one of the "fightingest" organizations in American military history—the United States Marines.

Now on its 168th birthday, this branch of our armed forces is leading in the fight of "our country's battles on the land and on the sea."

It was the men of the Marines who wrote the undying record of the defense of Wake Island in that desperate December of 1941. It was the Marines who first stormed ashore on Guadalacanal to take the first step in the "long road back" to Tokyo and triumph. And at this moment it is the Marines who are smashing ahead at Bougainville in the final sweep of the Solomons. Now that the "Marines have landed" we may be sure that "the situation is well in hand."

The Marines served under John Paul Jones in the Revolution, and were with Washington in his famous crossing of the Deleware. And in every war they have been in the thick of the fighting.

Today women as well as men are proudly serving in this renowned Corps. These women are really "fighting" for their country for each one of them releases a man to carry a gun against the enemy.

As long as their is need to defend our nation, we may be sure that the Marines will live up to the words of their song, "First to fight for right and freedom and to keep our honor clean." Hail to the Marines!

POLITICAL WINDS

What are the political winds saying? This is the question political weather men are asking themselves in the light of last week's elections.

Not surprising were the GOP victories in New York and New Jersey. But the election of a Republican Governor in Kentucky was astonishing.

Whether "the county is tired—very tired of the national administration," as Wendell Willkie put it, remains to be seen a year from now. Off-year elections in recent years have not served as good barometers for the quadrennial "big show."

James A. Farley, Democratic chairman of New York, hopes the results will "have a sobering effect on those who guide the national destinies."

Anyway, the political pot for 1944 is getting warm already!

BLINDING LIGHTS?

Now that we have had time to accustom our eyes once again to the "bright lights," it might be well to consider the psychological effect they are having on us. Are they causing us to be over-optmistic? Are we expecting a swift all-around return to normalcy?

While the warm glow of the lights should brighten our hearts and our hopes we should not let them blind our eyes to certain cold facts that must be kept in mind.

Basically, the situation on the home front is unchanged from what it was before November 1. For instance, the manpower shortage is still with us. In fact, the shortage of help is more acute than ever. Unable to get sufficient help to properly care for the normal volume of business the merchants are now confronted with the task of handling the increase brought about by the Christmas shopping.

We could hardly expect some of them, therefore, to further aggravate their problem by opening their stores at night in order to accommodate us on our Christmas shopping.

Brighter nights give promise of brighter days ahead. But those brighter days will come not through mere expectancy of a quick return to normalcy but through continued efforts on our part to carry the war on the home front to a vigorous and successful conclusion.

GOLD IS WHERE YOU FIND IT

When a girl breaks her engagement because "she has found someone else," she returns the ring and promises to "be a sister" to the loser in love. The gentleman then draws himself up bravely and tells her in a deep voice that if "she ever needs a friend" he'll always be on call. That's the classic concept, anyway.

However, there are variation—sharp variations, we might add. Take, for instance, a recent case. When the girl said "good-bye" the jilted John didn't mind losing her to another man. In fact, it was quite all right.

But as he told the judge, he did mind losing the gold he had given her and he wanted it back. With the aid of a rock he tried to recover it. The difficulty was, the gold was in her teeth! Fine—$50!

SEND CHRISTMAS GIFTS BY DECEMBER 10!

To facilitate the movement of heavy war business and travel expected to break all records during the holidays, the Office of Defense Transportation urges the public to complete the sending of all their personal Christmas packages by December 10.

In response to a request of the O.D.T., the Railway Express Agency is taking an active part in this endeavor. It is bringing the message to thousands of shippers, in business and residential districts throughout the country served by its 23,000 offices.

Retail and department stores everywhere are giving full support to the drive, which according to Railway Express, will help keep war materials moving on schedule and enable service men and women, on leave, to get home during the holidays.

THE BOOK MARK

by marty

"See What I Mean?" by Lewis Browne.

As we go about our daily routine of living, de we even faintly realize the strength of American fascism? Lewis Browne has shown me that I had not the slightest understanding of the growth of this venomous reptile within our own back yard. "See What I Mean?" makes one shudder, and makes prickly pains play up and down one's spine.

There is one consoling thought that comes to light in the comparison of Browne's novel and Mr. Lewis' "It Can't Happen Here" in that one can see just how far we have come toward a comprehension of fascism in our country.

Let us delve into the thick of the story and see what the author's message is to us. With a character, which Mr. Browne names Clem Smullet, as the spokesman of the tale, we are given a detailed account of methods used by the would-be instigators of subversive activities with various and varied religious organizations as a blind. Smullet had worked with several such organizations as advertising man. It was his job to put the ideas of the leaders into the hands of people whom they wanted as their members. Smullet was a weak fellow. He did not truthfully believe in the material he was handing out for his bosses, but his job meant money to him and that was all that mattered until he was caught along with the rest of his gang and he turned state's evidence and he told all. What Smullet tells comprises the book, and he tells all when he tells, see what he means?

John Christian Power, the Los Angeles Jew-baiter and would-be feuhrer, was the leader of a Los Angeles Crusader organization with whom Smullet is connected. "The Power" as the leader is known to his followers, is a character you will find hauntingly familiar, you will think you know him, you will have seen his picture, read what he said. He is a composite of American fascist leadership, spiced with and spouting the best imported poison. You have his tall, intense, lean figure standing with head raised and eyes fixed bitterly upon a future landscape as lonely as he, from which the people who do not love him have been swept and shot away. You have seen the fantastic and smutty pamphlets he distributes through and outside the mails, the public meetings at which his uniformed bullies in belts and guns stride the aisles, his parades of veiled women, his many newspapers, some published in the very shadow of the Department of Justice building, his isolationism before December 7, his obstructionism afterward, his widening chain of alliance that spreads across the country from Bund to Senatorial crusader. Mr. Browne misses nothing and neglects nobody. They are all here, named and nailed down in simple, recognizable form. This is Smullet squealing. He was caught and he tells all. Let us hope that each of us will see what he means.

Reduction of Sweets Lessens Tooth Decay

The old-fashioned admonition to children that too much candy will rot the teeth now has confirmation in modern scientific research. Conclusions based on a study of University of California students at the College of Dentistry on the San Francisco campus state that a reduction of refined sugars and concentrated sweets seems to be one means of decreasing the amount of tooth decay.

A report by Dr. Russel O. Collins, formerly clinical assistant, Dr. Arthur L. Jensen, instructor in dental medicine, and Dr. Hermann Becks, professor of dental medicine, gives the results of tests on three groups of 122 students each. All were the same age, sex, and economic status. The first 122 chosen were students entirely free from dental caries, all of the second group had caries activity and every one of the third had rampant caries with five or more open cavities.

Investigation of the diet of these people showed that in all food essentials no one group was superior to the other. However while the carbohydrates from vegetables and cereal products were similar in amounts for all three groups, the refined sugars and concentrated sweets average almost twice the amount in the caries-susceptible as in the caries-immune.

Blood Donors

carefully considered set of questions is put to the donor to further protect him. Doctors and registered nurses are on duty at all times.

Before donors may make a blood donation the results of the physical and laboratory examination and replies to the questions must be reviewed by the doctors in charge. If donors are accepted, it should be on the basis that they are capable of giving 500 cc. (pint) of blood. Thus individuals of small stature and those who appear frail, even though they comply with the minimum requirements are not accepted. This is a matter of judgment to be decided by the doctor in charge.

A few questions answered:

1.—Strep infection accepted, if 3 months cured.

2.—Do not accept donors with history of tuberculosis, malaria, diabetes.

3.—Donors with high blood pressure not accepted.

4.—Donor with blood pressure 110 or under is undesirable.

5.—Pregnant women are not accepted.

6.—No donor with cold is acceptable.

7.—Hemoglobin 80 per cent or over is satisfactory.

Professor Gives Tip on Hose

If you want to make your garden hose last, better drain all the water out of it each time it is used.

This is the advice of Dr. Claude E. ZoBell, associate professor of marine microbiology at the University of California's Scrips Institution of Oceanography, who has conducted a series of experiments on microbial attack on rubber products.

He tested samples of natural and synthetic rubber under varying conditions of microbial activity and found that in some instances microorganisms may play an important role in the deterioration of rubber products.

From experimental data, he estimates that up to one-half pound of rubber may be oxidized from the inner lining of a 50-foot garden hose in a year's time if water is left standing in it.

In general, synthetic rubber was found to be about as susceptible to microbial attack as the natural product, though some forms appeared to be more resistant. Dr. ZoBell recommends that microbe resistant rubber be used in gaskets and other fixtures which are continuously exposed to water.

AMERICAN HEROES

BY LEFF

A B-25 was taking off somewhere in North Africa. It crashed and burst into flames. Private Eugene A. Ganter rushed forward with three other soldiers to aid the crew. The heat was overwhelming but Ganter and his companions, drenched from the hoses of rescue apparatus, rescued three crew members from the blazing ship. Then Ganter returned to remove loaded 50 caliber machine guns. He won the Soldier's Medal. Such are the men your War Bonds fight beside.

Give Thanks this day to each Stalwart Son who fights Our Battles till Victory is won.

THANKSGIVING of all our holidays is brimful of sentiment. It is more than turkey and all the trimmings, especially if you are lonesome and far from home.

Thanksgiving is HOME. It is a glow of warmth and comfort that seems to creep right inside and hum like a song. It is the floating fragrance of brown gravy, the sweet pungence of mince pie, the odor of wood smoke and the crackle of logs in the fireplace. It is an intimate sense of belonging as you sit elbow to elbow at the family table.

Somewhere near you, right in your home town or in nearby camp, is a boy who cannot go home on furlough but would like to come Home to you. It will be a day he will long remember.

Ask your local USO or similar agency for a son of Uncle Sam to become "one of the family" for a day.
